Research exercise

Select a business ethics problem or dilemma that you have faced or which has arisen in an organization of which you have been part, either as an employee, a student, or a manager.

1. Briefly describe the basic details of the case, and identify and discuss the main business ethics issues involved.
2. Set out the main responses, solutions, or courses of action that could have been considered in relation to this problem.
3. Evaluate these options using theory discussed in this chapter.
4. What decision was finally made? To what extent do you believe that this was the best option, and why?
